WRIGHT'S BAIL NOT REDUCED Clerk Must Give $6000 or Stay in Jail.

Chief Justice Frear yesterday refused to reduce the $6,000 bail fixed by Judge Wilcox in the case of B. H. Wright, and the prisoner was taken back to jail, with his attorney, George Davis, threatening to appeal to the United States court.

The matter came before Judge Frear yesterday morning on petition for writ of habeas corpus, the defendant raising the constitutional question of excessive bail.

Davis appeared for Wright, while High Sheriff Brown, Attorney General Dole and Deputy Douthitt represented the government. The material part of the return of the high sheriff was as follows:

"That he is the duly appointed, qualified and acting high sheriff of the said Territory and ex-officio keeper of Oahu jail; that he holds and detains the said Benjamin H. Wright in said jail under and by virtue of a commitment of the district magistrate of the District of Honolulu for the crime of embezzlement, alleged to have been committed by the said Benjamin H. Wright; and under and by virtue of a mittimus thereon, a true copy of which is annexed to said petitioner's petition and made a part thereof; that the amount of the alleged embezzlement is $4,882.10, and that the amount of bail fixed and required by said district magistrate is $6,000, that the amount of said bail is not excessive and that the same has not been tendered."

At the request of Davis, Attorney General Dole admitted that Wright had stated that he had no property, and if he did possess any it was in his wife's name. Wright explained that his wife owned a one-fifth interest in the Long estate, and had, besides, King street property of about $5,500. There is a mortgage of $5,000 on the property.

Davis, in opening, referred to the bail of $4,000 in the first case, and added that the government could gain nothing by demanding excessive bail. The constitution guaranteed a free and impartial hearing, and this, the attorney said, could not be obtained with the defendant behind prison bars. Davis criticised the California opinions which were against him, saying that they had been severely criticised at the time that they were given by the journals. "This is an attempt on the part of the government to prevent Wright from getting bail," said the attorney. "The prosecution is not satisfied with an attempt to convict him but simply wants to find a victim and violate the constitution. The government should accept a reasonable amount of bail, otherwise I say they are hunting a victim, but they may not find one here. He has friends who will see that he gets justice in other courts, and according to the law of the land, if not in these courts. These California decisions cannot be relied upon; this one as to requiring bail for more than the amount of the embezzlement is not worthy of weight. Why, it is only a page long, and the poorest apology for an opinion I ever saw. I never saw your honors send down a decision like this, and I am not saying this for flattery. There may have been one like this in passing upon some little motion, perhaps, from Hilo, or somewhere else. To require bail of $6,000 in this case is not judicial conduct. I am not impeaching anyone, but the authorities should not seek to railroad a man to jail; don't seek a victim. Embezzlement is not such a serious crime. Don't seek to punish one man, when there are so many. Magistrates are not lawyers; they make mistakes, so do all of us, but they make more. I often go into these courts just for amusement, and some out disgusted."

"Suppose we fix the bail in this case at $2,000," continued Davis. "In the other case Judge Gear reduced the bail from $6,000 to $4,000."

"The bail in that case is larger in proportion now than is this amount," returned Judge Frear.

Mr. Dole replied briefly to the argument of Davis. He contended that the statute provided for imprisonment for ten years or a fine of five times the value of the property embezzled, and this should be taken into consideration. Referring to the first bond, he said that while the Long estate was worth five times the amount of the bail, yet the property was undivided, and this prevented it from being gilded security. In the first case Judge Gear fixed the bond at $4,000, and Judge Wilcox, acting upon that intimation, set the bail at $6,000 on the second charge. Mr. Dole contended that if the bond should be only the amount of the embezzlement, when the embezzler is captured, and he can take chances on being captured, the government had absolutely no protection from embezzlement, as the thief could not lose anything, even if caught, and he has also a chance to get away. "The court should also take into consideration the unfortunate condition of the territory at present, the treasurer being gone, and other defalcations having occurred. It is believed that if the bail is unduly small, people who are interested would spirit the petitioner away. This government wants all the facts, and to have the guilty punished, and the innocent go free." Mr. Dole said he had nothing but the most kindly feelings for the defendant, but he could not administer the duties of his office honestly and efficiently, and consent to a reduction of the bail. He did not believe the amount asked to be unreasonable.

Davis replied, charging that the government wanted to keep Wright in prison because of other defalcations. He said he would be willing to accept a reduction to $4,000, which is more than is required for murder. "Unless there are strong circumstances, which must prove their case beyond doubt, the government can never convict him. The attorney general is over-zealous, and this man should be given his liberty, notwithstanding that there are other embezzlements, and notwithstanding the press."

"There is no doubt that the constitution prohibits the imposition of excessive bail," said the Chief Justice in denying the motion. "The question now to be decided is as to whether the bail fixed is excessive. The question is not the same as it would be if the application for bail was an original one; the only contention now is as to whether or not the district magistrate abused his discretion. In determining what is reasonable, various things should be taken into consideration; the ability of the prisoner to give bail, the atrocity of the offence, and the penalty. In this case the prisoner was a high public official, and is presumed to have friends. The amount the prisoner can obtain is not alone to be considered; nor is that rule laid down by any authority, but the rule is rather what it is reasonable to expect the defendant could give."

"The amount of the bail depends largely upon the enormity of the offense; in embezzlement, the amount of bail varies inversely with the amount of the embezzlement. In the case where the amount was $100, five times that amount would not be considered excessive, while if it was $1,000,000, the same amount as bail might seem unreasonable. In the Tweed case, in New York, where the embezzlement charged was $6,000,000, the bail was only $3,000,000. There is no rule that bail should not exceed the amount embezzled."

"Of course, the penalty must also be taken into consideration. In the present case, the statute provides for imprisonment for any term of years up to life, or a fine of five times the amount of the embezzlement. The statute provides also that where the punishment is only a fine, the bail should be five times higher than that amount. If the punishment in this case were a fine alone, the bail should be $25,000. But this provision is not technically applicable. In the light of prevailing views, and the tendency to amelioration of criminal law, it seems to me, taking everything into consideration, the bail is not unduly high. The prisoner will be remanded to custody, under the terms of the commitment, and subject to be at large on the bail fixed by the committing magistrate."

Up to a late hour yesterday, Davis had not made good his threat of appealing to Judge Estee, and efforts are still being made to secure a bondsman, though the attorney told Judge Frear that he would be unable to do so.

BOYD BEGINS EXPLANATION

Supt. James H. Boyd was at work yesterday on the books and accounts of his office in the Department of Public Works.

He is going over all the records of his office with Secretary Cooper and making explanations as they may seem necessary in the examination of the books. Mr. Boyd was not personally in charge of the books of his department, and many of the transactions are known only to his clerks. The investigation will take some days.

FINANCES O. K. FOR KONA-KAU ROAD

Letters were received by the Sierra yesterday by parties here from Jacob Coerper, in which he states that he has completed all financial arrangements for the mainland for the Kona-Kau railroad project, and that he would arrive here on November 1. He said that he has the backing of Chicago, St. Louis and New York people who will back him for $5,000,000.

KONA WILL BE WOUND UP SOON Stockholders Vote to Ask for an Order for Sale of the Plantation.

Just as soon as the committee, provided in the resolution passed by its stockholders, can get together and take the preliminary steps, the Kona Sugar Company will apply for the winding up of its affairs. This action was taken unanimously at a meeting of the shareholders yesterday afternoon, where out of the 6,000 shares 2595 were represented.

The meeting of the stockholders was held at the office of the agents, McChesney & Sons, and while there was not a large number of the shareholders present they represented the majority of the stock. There was little discussion had, for as soon as the meeting had been called to order, and the status of the plantation explained, the resolution appended was introduced. It was announced that the directors of the company were of opinion that the course was the only one open as there seemed no way in which money could be raised for the various purposes which are deemed important by those who are interested in the furthering of the interests of the plantation.

This plan for the winding up of the estate was reached after the Third Circuit Court had refused to entertain the motion to have E. E. Conant, made manager, owing to the fact that there seemed no reason to believe that the added charge against the estate would be productive of beneficial results. Mr. Conant was reported to have said that there would be needed at once certain monies for the securing of a better labor supply and the meeting of the most urgent demands of the men. There are some of the cane planters who have become discouraged and they are anxious to see another disposition made of the estate.

Only one stockholder objected to the winding up of the affairs of the property, but his objections were overcome and when the resolution was put to final vote there was not a single ballot against it, and the committee will meet at once to have prepared papers which will be sent to Kona for presentation to Judge Edging. Receiver Scott will have the sale of the plantation's effects and it is expected that there will be no time lost in transfer of the matters.

None of those interested in the estate as creditors, either as the bondholders' representatives or the merchandise creditors will discuss the affairs of the plantation. It has been hinted that there will be a reorganization of the estate, but on what lines cannot be learned. Many of the stockholders are of opinion that the reorganization will come through the banking house of Bishop & Company, when it does come, but the heads of that house will not discuss the matter at all.

Col. J. H. Soper, who had several interviews with Jacob Coerper, while at San Francisco, said yesterday that he had been informed by the promoter of the Kona-Kau railroad, that he had many plans for the development of the two districts which are to be traversed by the railroad in question. He said, as reported, that he had assurances of support financially to the extent of five millions, and that he hoped to secure control of the Kona plantation, which would be the basis for much of the subsequent development of the southern side of the big island.

The resolution passed by the stockholders yesterday is as follows:

Episcopal Cathedral Ladies Plan Unique Entertainment—Many Special Features and Entertainments.

Gay in the holiday garb of the Romany folk, the band of strolling minstrels will be one of the principal features which will mark the completeness of the Gypsy encampment, in which form the ladies of the Episcopal Cathedral congregation will give their annual fair. The grounds surrounding the E. D. Tenney mansion will be the scene of the camp, and Saturday afternoon, from 2 till 6 o'clock there will be reproduced there the features of such a gathering of the wanderers.

The plans for the fair are being worked out carefully by the various committees in charge, and the arrangements yesterday began to take form. On the lawn mauka of the house there has been erected a large tent, and Mrs. Dr. Herbert, in charge of the decorations, has succeeded, by the generous use of palm branches, in hiding the construction until the canvas seems suspended from the branches of the trees. In this bower will be placed the principal booths. The doll show has been given the post at the entrance, and adjoining it will be the home made delicacies, with candies and other articles occupying the other side. The interior will be finished with color in contrast with the masses of green which form the walls, and made bright with the displays.

The interior will be finished with color in contrast with the masses of green which form the walls, and made bright with the displays.

Across the drive, and where every visitor will be given an opportunity to quench his thirst, will be the principal refreshment booth, and alone of all the arrangements is there a semblance of formality in these two main enclosures. About the spacious grounds will be placed tables where, beginning with the tea at 3:30 o'clock, there will be constant service of refreshments of all kinds.

On one side there has been prepared the replication of the woods camp of the wandering tribes. A Gypsy queen will preside over the camp, and while the kettle boils on the tripod of boughs, the caterers of the party will roast ears of corn in the ashes, and will generously permit visitors to the scene of their native gathering to partake of the dainties. On every side will be reminders of the encampment of the Gypsies, even to the fortune teller in her booth.

While many of these features will appeal to the older folk, there is to be a source of pleasure to the little ones in the orange tree. Its golden spheres are artificial, and each contains something which will be valued, though just what it is can be learned only by who buys and thus learns the fortune. This novel idea will be carried out by the use of one of the mandarin trees on the grounds.

While these workers of the tribe are enchanting golden coin from the visitors, the merry makers will stroll about the grounds and entertain with songs and dances. Under the tutelage of Mrs. Annis Montague Turner, a band of Romany minstrels has been organized, and their concert promises to be most acceptable. Mrs. Turner herself will sing several arias from "Carmen," "Marta," and other operas, and the strollers will furnish the choruses. All will be in costume, and there will be many surprises in the appearance of the band. The singers will have guitars and mandolins, and will accompany the choruses and solos which will make up the program.

The principal number will be delivered from the veranda overlooking the grounds, and then the singers will pass about among the visitors and sing their serenades and choruses. The accompaniment will be by piano while on the veranda. The costumes will represent Gypsies of all countries, from the staid Egyptian to the merry Spaniard, and some will develop the English accent, but all will be attractive.

The gates will be opened at 2 o'clock, and owing to the complete occupancy of the grounds by the encampment, no carriages will be permitted to remain within the grounds. The sale will not commence until 3 o'clock, and the principal concert will commence at 4 o'clock.

Whereas, the manual laborers now in the employ of the Company are restive and dissatisfied under the existing circumstances, and fall and refuse to properly and faithfully discharge their several duties and engagements to and with the Company, and have repeatedly engaged in strikes, thereby causing great loss to the Company and its creditors, and threaten to engage in other strikes entailing additional loss upon the Company and its creditors; and,

Whereas, it is now settled beyond peradventure that the Company cannot hope to save any part of its property without employing money in a large sum to enable it so to do, which sum, nor any part thereof sufficient for temporary use, cannot under present conditions be obtained; and,

Whereas, the further conduct of said plantation by a Receiver, in view of the matters above recited, cannot by any reasonable probability confer any sort of benefit upon the Company, but will inevitably result in the disintegration and waste of the Company's property, thereby entailing a great, if not a total, loss upon the bondholders of the Company and causing great injury to the community, by the tendency which such an end would have upon the market value of Hawaiian securities abroad; and,

Whereas, this Company is under an impressive moral obligation to its bondholders and other creditors to concert and in every way co-operate with them to enable them, if possible, to avert the great loss now threatened them; therefore, be it

ARREST SELLERS OF PAKE PIO

Eighteen sellers of Paka pio tickets were arrested last night by a squad of officers under the direction of Deputy Sheriff Chillingworth. The arrests were made only after careful investigation had been made in each instance, so that the officers feel certain of convictions, not only in Judge Wilcox's court, but in the higher court if the case ever reaches there. For two weeks past the detectives have had most of the men under surveillance have bought tickets, and have satisfied themselves thoroughly as to their identity.

Paka pio is a sort of lottery and a combination, but the difficulty is in determining just who is responsible for the money being paid out to the winners of the lottery. After the police bought tickets, they discovered that the way to obtain the money is unique, and in every way possible the promoters endeavor to destroy all traces of the source of the payments. Whenever the winnings are to be made known to the ticket-purchasing community, the fact is published by some sign in an out of the way place. A winner goes to the man from whom he purchased the ticket, and asks for the money. The other shrugs his shoulders, and remarks that it might be under the wooden sidewalk, or under a building, or some such place, and the winner generally finds the money there.

The last week's work will be made a hard one, for there will be meetings day and night, and some days more than two gatherings, which he will be asked to address. This will keep him busy, and will give every voter on the island a chance to hear him. It is proposed that the meetings shall be held at various points throughout the island, and perhaps there will be a campaigning party go about with the leader. There is also a bare possibility that Makekau, who was such an effective speaker while here, will return with the Prince for the work.

The Young Men's Republican Club will take up the campaign on the waterfront at once, and the first meeting will be held today. There will be speakers attend at Brewer's wharf at noon, and it is expected that there will be a large meeting. Tomorrow there will be an afternoon meeting, the hour being 3 o'clock, and the place the old Fishmarket wharf. These meetings will be kept up until the end of the campaign.

There will be two large meetings this evening. These will be at Ikenberg's place at Waiiale, and at Camp No. 2 on Liliha street. The senators will divide, so that they may reach the greatest number of people.

The party which has been on tour on the other side of this island returned yesterday, after most successful

TO HAVE TORCH AND ORATOR Week End Meeting Will Be Big Gathering.

Republicans will make a brave showing of their strength on Saturday evening, and with torchlight procession and speeches will mark the progress of the campaign. Prince Kuhio will be the principal speaker, and the meeting will be the most elaborate, and without doubt the largest, which has been held as yet. The meeting will be held at Emma square.

That there may be no younger Republican gathering, the Young Men's Republican Club has abandoned its announced meeting for the Orpheum on that evening, and the members of the committees of the club will turn in and give all their weight to make the turnout impressive. The committee in charge has arranged that there shall be assembling of the various clubs at the rendezvous on Union square, from which point the marching men will take their way over the principal downtown streets to Emma square. The officers who will have charge of the procession have not been announced, nor has the line of march been fixed. But these details will be fixed during today, and the entire arrangements will be in shape.

The change of place for the meeting was made owing to the fact that the outlook is for such an attendance of Republicans, and those who will wish to hear the speech of the Prince, that they could not be gathered within the walls of the Orpheum. It has been found that there are larger gatherings, too, out of doors, and this has had to do with the change of plans for Saturday evening. There is, as well, on Saturday evening a great meeting at the Kalihi camp, and it is expected that the Prince will go there when he has finished his speech at Emma square. This of course cannot be decided until the return of the leader, as his trip may have proved exhausting.

Prince Kuhio has changed his course within the week, and instead of continuing at work on the island of Maui, as he planned, he is now in Hilo.

This determination was reached owing to the fact that he considered that his promise to the people there should be kept, and they should have the opportunity to hear him again. According to information received by telegraph yesterday the Prince left Maui in the Claudine, and would spend the days while the ship lays there, in the Hilo and Puna districts, taking the Claudine back to Maui, and working there until the Mauna Loa passes, which would put him here for the last week only, his return being on October 23. This is not what had been planned, and yesterday urgent messages were sent to him not to change the original purposes of the committee in charge of the meetings here. With as many voters on Oahu as on the entire islands outside, it is felt that he must give the work here as much time as possible, and he is urged to be here after October 25, when he should return in the Claudine.

The last week's work will be made a hard one, for there will be meetings day and night, and some days more than two gatherings, which he will be asked to address. This will keep him busy, and will give every voter on the island a chance to hear him. BRITISH CABLE COMING

Bill to Extend It Has a Second Reading.

WELLINGTON (N. Z.), September 23.—The Pacific Cable extension bill, which was read a second time in the house of representatives last evening, provides for the extension of the cable between Fanning Island and Honolulu, another channel for getting business over the Pacific Cable, and an alternative route via Vancouver.

NEW YORK, October 15.—The directors of the Commercial Cable Company met today and elected Clarence H. Mackay president of the Pacific Postal Telegraph Company. All rumors to the effect that a consolidation with any other telegraph company were contemplated were officially denied. Chairman Ward contradicted the published report that the Commercial Cable Company's Pacific cable would go no further than Honolulu. The contract for the entire cable to Manila has been let. The line to Honolulu will be working by January 1, and the entire line to Manila, it is expected, by July. The company has made no contract to lay a cable from Honolulu to Fanning Island.

DUTY ON THE CABLE.
SAN FRANCISCO, October 14.—The steamer Silverton is on the way from Germany to this port with the cable for the new line to the Hawaiian Islands and the Philippines, and the question of the duty to be paid by the Mackay-Bennett people is being considered by Collector of Customs Stratton. It is thought that his decision will be to make the company pay merely on the part of the cable extending three leagues from port, and not on the whole cable.

Famous Vessel Unearthed.
Pile drivers, building a section of the new ways for the construction of the new battleship Connecticut at the Brooklyn navy yard, discovered the famous English prison ship Jersey, on which several hundred Americans, who were prisoners at the time of the Revolution, died while the British held New York. Historical societies, government surveys and other researches for many years have failed to locate the ship. The half-burned hull is lying in about two fathoms of mud and water in front of Main street, about 500 feet from the dock. The timbers of the Jersey are believed to be in good condition. Borings proved that they are of oak and teak.

Wants More Warships.
WASHINGTON, Oct. 15.—United States Minister Bowen at Caracas today cabled the State Department asking that one or perhaps two warships be sent to reinforce the gunboat Marietta at La Guayra, in view of the present critical situation which has arisen at the Venezuelan capital. Some time ago when President Castro left his capital, Minister Bowen expressed to the State Department his fears that an occupation of the capital by the revolutionary forces would result in rioting and pillaging and be attended with great danger to unprotected foreigners. Such a situation, it is inferred here, is again imminent.

Mate Moxsen Oct. 10.
SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 10.—To the surprise of shipping people the ship W. F. Babcock arrived in port yesterday. The Babcock's master is Captain Moxsen, who was chief officer of the Roanoke when that ship caught fire in the South Pacific last year, while en route from Baltimore with coal, and had to put into Honolulu, after an exciting experience. Moxsen distinguished himself upon that occasion by his bravery in locating and fighting the fire in the cargo, and is said to have received a gift of $500 from the Roanoke's owners in addition to being given command of the Babcock.

Oilcut on Oil Carrier.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 15.—The ship Marion Chilcott, belonging to the Matson Navigation Company, has been converted into an oil carrier and will be ready to go into commission in a few days. The Chilcott's tanks will have a capacity for carrying 15,000 barrels of oil. She will run between here and Honolulu and be used in keeping up the supply of liquid fuel at the Honolulu oil depot.

GEAR LETS WRIGHT OUT OF PRISON

Accepts Bail Which Atty. Gen. Dole and High-Sheriff Brown Say is Inadequate.

(From Wednesday's dolly.)

B. Haywood Wright enjoyed a few brief minutes of liberty yesterday afternoon through the instrumentality of Judge Gear, and was immediately re-arrested upon a second charge of embezzlement of government funds amounting to $4,982.10. Yesterday morning Wright, whose bail was fixed at $4,000 by Judge Gear, secured a sighter to his bond, in the person of Antonio Long, one of the five heirs to the Long estate. When the bond was presented to High Sheriff Brown, he refused to accept it, claiming that it was not sufficient surety, in view of the fact that the estate was assessed at only $45,000, and the surety owned but an undivided one-fifth interest. A visit to Attorney General Dole brought a like refusal, and then George Davis became indignant and threatened an appeal to Judge Gear.

The original bond of Wright, fixed by Judge Wilcox at the preliminary hearing, was $8,000, which is double the amount of the alleged defalcation, but Davis brought the matter before "Success to Crime" Gear on habeas corpus, and had the bail reduced to $4,000, even before the trial in district court had been concluded.

Wright was permitted to leave the jail yesterday in company with an officer and George Davis in order to search for Long, whose presence was required in the application to be made to Judge Gear. It was nearly 6 o'clock yesterday afternoon before young Long could be located on the football field, and he was taken before Judge Gear, who had very accommodatingly agreed to await his arrival in his chambers at the court house. Attorney General Dole was notified and he appeared to object to the approval of the bond. He contended that the entire estate was worth but $45,000 according to the assessor's books, and that Long had but an undivided one-fifth interest, which could not be sold, and which would not bring double the amount of the bond, or $8,000, if sold at forced sale.

Long went on to testify as to the value of his property, and his statements were backed up by Davis, who insisted that his share in the estate is worth much more than double the bail bond, and that he had qualified under the statute as a bondsman.

THE COAL STRIKE STILL IN THE STAGE OF CONFERENCE

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11.—"Dig coal."

This is President Roosevelt's one desire.

He cares not who settles the strike. For the time being he cares not how it is settled. His one object is to use the good offices of the President of the United States as the representative of the public interests, which are now superior to those of the operators or miners, to bring about an end of the controversy and relief from widespread distress. Deeply deploring the result of the conferences of the last two days in New York, his efforts have been renewed and Secretary Root is now in New York to again offer services of the President and his administration for the purpose of mediation.

NEW PROPOSALS.

WASHINGTON, October 13.—By authority of J. P. Morgan, who, with his partner, Robert Bacon, and Secretary Root, were in conference with President Roosevelt at the temporary White House tonight for an hour and a half, a statement was given out by Secretary Cortelyou, in which the presidents of the coal-carrying railroads and mine operators propose a commission of five persons to adjust the differences and settle the coal strike in the anthracite coal fields of Pennsylvania. The proposition is satisfactory to the Administration to be satisfied by the Administration by President Mitchell of the United Mine Workers' Union with additional conditions which it is believed the miners will accept.

LITTLE HOPE.

WILKESBARRE (Pa.) October 14.—President Mitchell of the miners union uttered the following statement to the press tonight.

I fully appreciate what is anxiously the people of our country are awaiting the end of the coal strike. The coal operators have not addressed the miners union or its officers in making their public statement. It is therefore impossible for me to state the attitude of the miners at this time. I am now, as I have always been, deeply solicitous of the interests of the public and the welfare of the workers who have been on strike for the past five months. A formal statement defining our position and intentions will be issued just as soon as we are in possession of the full meaning of the proposition of the operators.

WHAT HAPPENED.

WASHINGTON Oct. 13.—It is understood that at the conference with the President Mr. Mitchell's main objection to the acceptance of the proposition of the operators was the limitation placed upon the President in the selection of the arbitration committee.

He was especially opposed to the restriction limiting the selection of a Federal judge to a particular judge. It is understood that the miners are willing to waive the technical restriction of the selection of a Federal judge.

ENGLAND READY TO FIGHT

LONDON, October 12.—Information has reached here that a great British fleet lately maneuvering in the Mediterranean has been suddenly ordered to take up strategic positions in the neighborhood of Salonica and Smyrna, while the squadrons at Malta and Gibraltar will be immediately strengthened. These measures are considered necessary in consequence of Russia's endeavors to coerce Turkey, particularly with reference to her war ships' privileges in the Dardanelles. The situation is deemed so urgent that it completely disorients the education bill crisis in Saturday's cabinet meeting.

CHANGE IN PLANS OF HILO RAILWAYS

At a conference yesterday between Acting Superintendent Cooper of the department of public works and representatives of the Hilo and Hilo-Kohala Railways the right of way upon the Hilo waterfront was agreed upon for both railways.

There has been some difficulty in so allotting the right of way to the proposed Kohala-Hilo Railway as not to cross the tracks of the Hilo Railway. Under the old plans these tracks would necessarily have to be crossed in three different places, but by the new arrangement only one set of rails must be crossed. The new plan, as agreed upon yesterday, is reported as satisfactory to all parties concerned.

There were present at the meeting B. F. Dillingham, L. A. Thurston and E. E. Paxton of the Hilo Railway and Colonel Jones and Mr. Gehr for the Kohala road.

ANOTHER CONFERENCE.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15.—John Mitchell, the strike leader, arrived here at 11:27 a. m. over the Pennsylvania road. He went direct to the White House, where he held a conference with President Roosevelt and Commissioner of Labor Wright.

AN HOUR'S TALK.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15.—Mr. Mitchell left the White House at 12:55 p. m., having been with the President a little over an hour. He went to the office of Frank P. Sargent, Commissioner of Immigration. While here he will be the guest of Dr. David T. Day of the Geological Survey.

SIMPLE METHODS.

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—English moralists are staggered by the tremendous simplicity of the negotiations for bringing the coal strike to a close, cables the London correspondent of the Tribune. Neither sovereign nor prime minister here could have intervened in an industrial crisis as the President has done, nor is there any English financier capable of playing Mr. Morgan's part. No labor leader has arisen in England with Mr. Mitchell's influence over the workers. The strike, if settled by arbitration, will be a fresh proof, according to English observers, that Americans have the power of keeping their heads while walking on the verge of a precipice.

BRIGHT SUGAR OUTLOOK

Hackfeld Returned From Europe Yesterday.

(From Thursday's Daily.)

"I believe that the prospects for better prices for sugar are very encouraging, and that Hawaii may soon again see a return of the former prosperity," said J. F. Hackfeld to the Advertiser after arriving by the steamer Sierra yesterday. Mr. Hackfeld has been away from the islands for about six months, and during his stay in Germany he made a careful study of conditions which affect the sugar market with the result that he returns jubilant over the prospects of island prosperity. Mr. Hackfeld is in the best of health and spirits.

"During my absence," he said, "I have given a good deal of thought to the sugar situation and I believe that the worst commercial depression ever experienced by Hawaii is now passed, and that we may look forward to better prices for sugar in the near future."

"The weather," said Mr. Hackfeld, in speaking of the situation in Germany, "has been very cold and disagreeable there and in other parts of Europe, whereby the growth of beets has been much retarded. From reports received by me, I learn that the weather has shown no improvement during September and October, consequently Mr. Licht, the well-known sugar expert of Magdeburg, has estimated the shortage of the present beet crop in Europe, against last year, from 1,000,000 tons to 1,500,000 tons, with the probability that the shortage will be nearer the latter amount. Any shortage over 1,000,000 tons will go to reduce the surplus of last year of about 1,000,000 tons, and considering the constantly increasing consumption of sugar, it will be seen that the sugar market has every prospect of getting back to normal conditions very soon."

"The present conditions are clearly demonstrated," continued Mr. Hackfeld, "by the quotations for beet sugar in the London market during the past four weeks. On the 16th of September beets were quoted at 6s; on September 17, 6s 1/4d; September 20, 6s 3d; September 22, 6s 2 1/4d; September 23, 6s 3d; September 25, 6s 4 1/4d; September 26, 6s 3d; September 29, 6s 4 1/2d; October 2, 6s 4 1/4d; October 3, 7s 2 1/4d; October 4, 7s; October 7 to 15, 7s 1 1/2d; October 16, 7s 3d. You will notice by these figures that beets rose on one day, on October 2, from 6s 4 1/4d to 7s 2 1/4d, and that the price has steadily kept up, rising on October 16, when the steamer Sierra left San Francisco, to 7s 3d, which is equal to about 3 1/2-4 cents per pound for 96 degrees in New York."

"As the American Sugar Refining Company has lately been in receipt of large shipments of sugar, previously purchased, it did not need to buy any sugar in the New York market; thus the basis for our sugars has remained at 4.375 cents until October 14, when a sale was made at 3 1/2 cents. As the holders of sugar in New York are asking higher prices, the next sale will no doubt be made at a higher rate."

"Another question which has an important bearing on the future sugar market is the convention agreed to and accepted by the governments of England, Germany, Austria, France, Italy, Belgium and the Netherlands, at Brussels, which provides that all sugar bounties now paid on sugar by any of the governments named shall be abolished from and after September 1, 1903, and that after said date the difference between the tariff and the internal revenue on sugar in the respective countries shall not be more than six francs per 100 kilo."

"This provision has already been ratified by the German Reichstag and the Belgian legislature, and is expected to pass the legislative bodies of Austria, France and the Netherlands during this or next month. There is no doubt that this convention will go into force on September 1, next, and to show what an important bearing it is bound to have on the price of sugar in the world's markets, I will give as an illustration the condition under which German beet growers are working at present, and how they will be affected by the enforcement of the Brussels convention. The tariff on sugar in Germany amounts at present to about $86 per ton of 2,000 pounds English, and the internal revenue collected by the government on all sugars sold for consumption in Germany is about $43 per ton; figuring the actual cost of refined sugars at about $50 per ton, sugar can be sold in Germany at $126 per ton before any foreign competition may be feared. To get the full benefit of these conditions, the so-called Sugar Cartel was formed some years ago. This is a combination of all the sugar manufacturers in Germany, formed with the object of keeping the price for domestic sales as high as possible, for the purpose of realizing the above profit on such sales of about $42 per ton of 2,000. Accepting the annual German sugar consumption at, say 300,000 tons of 2,000 pounds each, this means a profit of about $34,400,000. The bounty paid at present amounts to about $5.50 per ton of 2,000 pounds English, which, allowed on about 1,200,000 tons of sugar exported from Germany, amounts to $6,600,000 per annum, or a grand total of $41,000,000 protection secured to the sugar manufacturers by government legislation.

"Under the terms of the Brussels convention all bounties will be abol-

BOYD RETURNS TO ANSWER CHARGES

Explains the Three Thousand Dollar Transaction With T. H. Davies & Co.

James H. Boyd, superintendent of public works, returned on the Sierra from San Francisco yesterday. In a conference with Governor Dole and Secretary Cooper, Mr. Boyd agreed that the latter should continue in charge of his office for the present and until Colonel Boyd explains the charges which he expects will be made against his administration of the office of Superintendent of the department of public works.

In addition to the $3,000 Davies transaction, Mr. Boyd has been asked to explain other details in connection with his office, all of which he has promised to do. A partial explanation was made yesterday, and this is to be followed up by detailed examination of the books by Mr. Boyd and Mr. Cooper together.

In an interview Superintendent Boyd stated that the $3,000 he received from Davies & Company is on special deposit with him, and he announces his readiness to turn it over to the Hill road board whenever required.

The following letters, sent to Superintendent Boyd and Secretary Cooper, were given out by Governor Dole yesterday, and explain the present status of the matter, officially:

Oct. 1st, 1902.

Mr. James H. Boyd, Care of Mrs. W. L. Grieve, Oakland, Cal.

Sir:—It is necessary that you should return to Honolulu by the first opportunity. Please observe this request.

Very respectfully,

SANFORD B. DOLE, Governor T. H.

Oct. 21st, 1902.

Mr. Henry E. Cooper.

Sir:—Referring to my letter of October 1st, requesting "you to assume and discharge the duties and exercise the powers of the Superintendent of Public Works, as my agent and personal representative during my pleasure and the absence of Mr. James H. Boyd from the Territory," I now request you to continue to exercise such authority and discharge such duties until further notice, even though Mr. James H. Boyd shall in the meantime return to the Territory.

Very respectfully,

SANFORD B. DOLE.

Oct. 21st, 1902.

Mr. James H. Boyd, Superintendent of Public Works, Honolulu, T. H.

Sir:—During your absence from the Territory matters have come to light in the Department of Public Works which in connection with the absence of the Treasurer, who was deputed by you to attend to your official duties, made it necessary for me to take charge of the work of the Department.

I have placed Mr. Henry E. Cooper in charge as my agent and personal representative to exercise the powers and discharge the duties of the position of Superintendent of Public Works and have instituted an investigation of the accounts of the Department, which investigation is not yet completed and which has developed some matters affecting your management of the office requiring an explanation from you.

J. F. Hackfeld, who returned from a six months' absence on the Sierra yesterday, and has some interesting things to say concerning the sugar situation.

lished; furthermore, the German tariff on sugars will be about $40.30 per ton of 2,000 pounds, and the internal revenue about $30 per ton, thus granting the sugar manufacturers a protection of only about $10.30 for sugar sold in Germany, or $32.70 per ton less than formerly, in addition to the loss of bounty, or $8,240,000 per annum instead of $41,000,000 formerly received. The high protection at present enjoyed by the German sugar manufacturers enables them, of course, to sell their sugar in the London market twice over, as has now been the case during the last twelve months. The changed conditions under the Brussels convention will, however, not allow them to continue this practice without ruinous results and they will no doubt reduce the sowing of beets further next spring, as the next crop will have to be marketed under the new conditions, and as they are very anxious to receive normal prices again for their exports after September 1, 1903.

"The conditions in other European beet growing countries are very similar," continued Mr. Hackfeld. "After careful consideration of the foregoing facts, I believe that the prospects for better sugar prices are very encouraging. Should speculators get hold of the article we may see higher prices much sooner than expected. Higher prices of sugar mean, of course, a return of prosperity for the whole Territory."

M'DUFFIE IS TO RETURN

Special Officer Found No Trace of Wright.

Unless Special Officer Arthur McDuffie obtains a clue as to the whereabouts of absconder William H. Wright, a couple of days after the arrival of the Miowera at Vancouver or the freighter Nevada he will return to Honolulu without wasting more time there. High Sheriff Brown yesterday decided to send a letter to McDuffie by the first mail to the coast, either by the Miowera or by the Nevada, requesting him to return here at the earliest opportunity.

The High Sheriff received a report from McDuffie, who is now in San Francisco, to the effect that neither he nor the San Francisco police had been able to find a trace of Wright. Every avenue of escape had been watched closely but as Wright had had several days' start of McDuffie, he had effectually covered his tracks.

McDuffie reports also that he had seen two people in San Francisco who had seen Wright after he is presumed to have left quarantine. One was a barber, and the other was a friend whom McDuffie had known in Honolulu. Both had met the former treasurer on a street in San Francisco but he had little to say to either. He seemed to be anxious to say as little to them as possible, and evinced a desire to part with their company. The two men described Wright to McDuffie as having no mustache. Before the Sierra sailed McDuffie obtained a report from Chief of Police Wittman of San Francisco to the effect that he felt certain Wright was not in San Francisco.

McDuffie's presumption is that Wright had fled to Mexico.

CANARDS ABOUT THESE ISLANDS

Under the head of Suffering in Hawaii, the New York Sun publishes the following dispatch:

SAN JUAN, P. R., Oct. 5.—The News has received a communication from Hilo, Hawaii, signed by 500 Porto Ricans, who emigrated in 1901 to work on sugar plantations, begging for relief. They say that they are subjected to great cruelties. They do not get sufficient food, are whipped by overseers, and live like beasts.

When sick they are not sent to the hospital unless they pay for treatment. If they do not have the money for the hospital expenses they must go to prison for treatment, and then they are kept as prisoners for three months, being registered as having committed petit larceny. The signers add that complaints are useless as the people and the authorities are indifferent to their sufferings.

The communication has caused much indignation here. Mr. Degetau, the Porto Rican Commissioner at Washington, will ask the American government to send a commission to Hawaii to investigate the condition of the Porto Ricans there.

FRIDAY OCTOBER 24

THE HOME RULE LEGISLATURE.

The Home Rulers, in trying to apologize for the Legislature, say that they were thwarted by the Governor. It is an example of the fact that a poor excuse is better than none. Assuredly the Governor did not compel the legislators to withhold the money needed to carry out their own appropriation bills nor did he inspire them to spend three days wrangling over the spelling of the word "forty," or a week in debating the merits of a dog bill. When they took time needed for law-making in trying to get a private rebate from printing offices on jobs for the House and Senate and in seeking a subsidy for Wilcox, they did not visit the Governor with any responsibility for their acts. On the forty-third day of the session they had sent but seven bills to the Governor and some of these were glaringly unconstitutional. But during that time they had wasted a week denying the right of the Governor to sign his name without his title and in denying the right of Secretary Cooper even to sit among the legislative spectators. If there was any working time left over it was used in debating Mahoe's bill to fix the price of fish at ten cents a pound, in getting hoodlum lunches at Nott's and in trying to repeal Federal laws. The Home Rule members, though having a two-thirds majority in the House and all but a two-thirds majority in the Senate, were everlastingly jabbering over something they did not understand or resting between heats. They were "long" on killing time. They eschewed evening session until the very last and shirked duty on Saturdays; and were always ready to take a few hours off for a luau or a drink, or a chat with Col. Mazuma. What part did the Governor have in that except to urge diligence in passing reasonable bills? All the thwarting he did was directed against failures or crimes.

The truth is that the Home Rulers deliberately wasted the first sixty days and the additional thirty days of the session in the hope that their neglect to pass revenue and other needed bills would compel the Executive to call an extra session of sixty days more. They wanted further time for the sake of the salaries and the perquisites. The ninety day vaudeville cost the taxpayers $100,000 more, and a sixty day vaudeville would have netted the legislators $50,000 more. The Governor balked at the $50,000 demand, all honor to him, but that did not make him responsible for the fact that the people of the Territory got practically nothing back from the outlay of $50,000.

The net result to the business interests of the legislative failure was a lowering of financial confidence and a touch of hard times. Money was shy of a Territory where the law-making processes were in the hands of knaves and ineptness; and it always will be shy under similar conditions. The legislative ticket of the Home Rule party this year is practically what it was two years ago and if it wins the history of the House and Senate in 1900 will repeat itself. The only way out is by the election of the Republican ticket.

WILCOX AND THE LEPERS.

There are over twelve hundred lepers in Louisiana alone and yet Wilcox says that the success of his bill would only bring three hundred alien lepers to Molokai, that being, in his opinion, the extent of the leper population of the United States.

In the old Northwest, where so many Scandinavians live, the leper population is believed to exceed the Wilcox estimate for the whole country.

If Molokai should go into Federal hands the chances are almost certain that every American leper would be deported there and the restraint put upon the white and native inmates would be marked by the rigid discipline of a military prison.

As to the segregation of the sexes that, as Senator Burton says, would come as a matter of course. Even if Wilcox opposed this measure, WHICH HE DID NOT DO WHEN THE COMMISSION WAS HERE, Congress would follow its own judgment about it and segregate as a matter of course.

Just now Wilcox is trying to allay the discontent of the lepers with soft words but he is careful not to pledge himself in writing to drop the Federal leper bill altogether.

AS TO MCCARTHY.

C. J. McCarthy, candidate for the Legislature on the Home Rule ticket, yesterday denied that he had ever intimated in a speech that Gov. Dole and his administration were trying to exterminate the Hawaiians. The information came from a trustworthy Hawaiian who said he had heard the speech.

Col. McCarthy it was who last August at Waverley Hall declared the time had come for all business men to combine against Wilcox in the interest of the business community, and who now, on the Wilcox ticket, is lauding the head of the ticket while appealing for votes for himself for member of the Legislature.

Even if Col. McCarthy occasionally remembers to forget what he said in an incendiary speech, about people on the other side, he certainly forgets to remember his previous views about his own people.

McCarthy is a pretty good man for Democrats and Home Rulers as well as Republicans to vote against.

Hawaii has been visited by a Pettigrew before, but it is not on record that he did it any harm.

SUGAR CONSUMPTION.

The people of the United States now consume eight times as much sugar per capita as they did in the first quarter of the last century, four times as much as the average per capita during the decade ending with 1850, and twice as much as they did in any year prior to 1870. In the years immediately prior to 1825 the average consumption of sugar was about eight pounds per capita, in the decade 1840-50, about ten pounds per capita, in the years immediately prior to 1870 the average was about twenty-two pounds per capita (omitting the war years, in which the consumption was light), from 1870 to 1880 it averaged about forty pounds per capita, in 1880 to 1890 fifty pounds per capita; in 1891 the figure was sixty-six pounds per capita, and has ranged from sixty-two to sixty-eight pounds per capita since that time, the figure for 1901 being sixty-eight and four-tenths pounds. This steady growth in the per capita consumption of sugar is shown by some figures which the Bureau of Statistics will present in the next issue of its annual volume, the Statistical Abstract. The per capita consumption has been a matter of record during recent years, but it has not been before practicable to compare the per capita consumption of recent years with that of earlier years and to note the very rapid increase in the quantity consumed by each individual of the country.

This growth in the consumption of sugar is, evidently, not confined to the people of the United States. The increase seems to have been equally rapid in other parts of the world, judging from the figures of total production. Figures recently published by the Bureau of Statistics in its monograph, "The World's Sugar Production and Consumption," showed that the sugar production of the world was eight times as great in 1900 as in 1840, the figure for 1840 being 1,150,000 tons and that for 1900, 8,800,000 tons. This increase in production, and consequently in consumption, has come largely through the development of the beet sugar industry, which increased from a production of 50,000 tons in 1840 to 200,000 tons in 1850, 831,000 tons in 1870, 1,402,000 tons in 1880, 3,623,000 tons in 1890, and 5,950,000 tons in 1900. During the same time, cane sugar production increased from 1,100,000 tons in 1840 to 2,850,000 tons in 1900. Beets in 1840 supplied 4.35 per cent of the total sugar product of the world; in 1850, they supplied 14.29 per cent; in 1860, 20.43 per cent; in 1870, 34.40 per cent; in 1890, 63.70 per cent, and in 1900, 67.71 per cent.

The per capita consumption of sugar in the United States is greater than that of any other country, except the United Kingdom, in which the annual consumption ranges from eighty-five to ninety-one pounds per capita, against from sixty to sixty-eight pounds in the United States, the figure of consumption for 1900 in the United Kingdom being 91.6 pounds per capita.

The following table shows the per capita consumption of sugar in the United States and the principal European countries in 1900, the latest available year:

Countries.	Sugar Consumption Per Capita. Pounds.
United Kingdom	91.6
United States	65.2
Switzerland	60.3
Denmark	54.8
Sweden and Norway	38.2
France	37.0
Germany	35.9
Netherlands	32.5
Belgium	23.3
Austria-Hungary	17.6
Portugal and Madeira	14.7
Russia	14.0
Spain	10.6
Turkey	8.0
Roumania	7.8
Greece	7.2
Italy	6.1

Mr. Boyd has returned and his statements in answer to the questions propounded by the Governor, are awaited with interest by the island public. So far he has said nothing definite to the press, except that he will account for every cent of the Davies fund. As to other matters which the Governor has brought to his attention, Mr. Boyd withholds comment. Probably, in the course of a few days, he will have something to say. In the meantime his office will remain in charge of Secretary Cooper.

The evidence is strong that the B. H. Wright envelope contains a great many I O U's given by Home Rulers who got money for campaign expenses. If those who gave out the money will protect Mr. Wright by their testimony when the case comes to trial, the I O U's will never see the light; if not they will be spread on the records of the court. The envelope and its contents are now, or were recently, in the possession of his lawyers and have been shown to two or three people.

There seems to be no doubt that a loop of the British cable will be brought to Honolulu. The acting premier of New Zealand states that the plan has been practically accepted. It will not be long, therefore, before Honolulu will be in telegraphic touch with the United States, Canada, Australia and with Asia through the Philippines. After the famine will come the feast.

By straining a point about bail Judge Geor permitted George Davis' client, B. H. Wright, to go free. This was precisely what was to be expected of Geor, but in this instance the Success in Crime Jurist reckoned without his host. A new charge of embezzlement was promptly filed and Wright will be arraigned on it in Judge Wilcox's court this morning.

Senator Mitchell as chairman of the visiting commission probably knows who sent it here, Wilcox to the contrary notwithstanding. Wilcox may have wanted a commission, but his influence in the Senate was even less than it was in the House where it amounted to a cipher and a half smile.

Col. McCarthy made another speech last night in which he attacked the "Jole oligarchy." Is this the same oligarchy that Milliam McCarthy took an oath to support and has been carrying a sword for these many years? If so, he is better late than breaking away from it.

PEACE WITH HONOR.

The hopes of the mainland Democracy that the coal strike would go on until after election and so make effective the "empty coal scuttle" issue, have been dashed by the success of the President's negotiations. The great strike has now been practically concluded on terms that are satisfactory to both sides. The production of coal has doubtless by this time been resumed and as retail prices fell in anticipation of it the suffering of the people has been somewhat relieved. Happily no cold snap occurred up to the 15th of October when our advices closed, to cause any extraordinary draft upon the limited supply of coal remaining.

The President must have gained great prestige by his part in the negotiation. Though an invalid under the surgeon's knife, he has applied himself in a characteristic way to a solution of the troubles. What seemed to be an irreconcilable conflict he has easily assuaged and what the Democrats exultantly called an impasse between capital and labor, he has levelled by his diplomacy. The simplicity of it all evoked surprised comment in Europe; the immense utility of it receives general applause at home.

We may now anticipate no serious trouble in the Congressional elections. Before the strike, a Republican victory was as good as won; but when the row was at its height the loss of several Republican seats was expected by Republicans themselves. But the reaction which the President has brought about ought to restore things as they were and make a Republican victory certain at the November polls.

Little can be expected of the coast police in the matter of finding Treasurer Wright, without the stimulus of a reward. If a thousand dollars were "in it," somebody would spot Wright without much delay. Unfortunately the incidental fund, the pocket-money of the administration, does not permit of so liberal a draft.

Wilcox goes on the principle of claiming everything. He says he has got Kauai, Maui and Hawaii, notwithstanding a mountain of proof to the contrary, and in a few days he will announce that he has pocketed Molokai. There is nothing like keeping up a cheerful spirit when everything is going wrong.

The Davis contention that one-third the amount stolen should be fixed for bail, would admirably suit the man who had taken $15,000 and is satisfied to run away with $10,000.

Hawaii is always as fortunate in its Senatorial enemies as it is in its Senatorial friends.

PREFERENTIAL

COLONIAL TRADE

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—A resolution adopted by the National Union of Conservative Associations in favor of preferential trade with the colonies is a significant political incident, cables the London correspondent of the Tribune. Sir Howard Vincent, who proposed it, is an old time protectionist, and his opposition to free trade has taken various forms. His conversion to the Canadian policy of preferential trade is not of recent date, for he supported it as long ago as 1887, when the Oxford conference was held. A representative body of delegates from Conservative Association has now accepted a resolution presented by him embodying the principle that new sources of revenue can be found by taxing articles competing with the home trade and urging the government to carry out a policy of preferential trade between all parts of the British empire. The ministers do not lack employment in defending the education bill, and are not likely to act prematurely upon Sir Howard Vincent's resolution.

THE LAW REVIEW

SCORES HILO JUDGE

The September-October number of the "American Law Review," published in St. Louis, thus comments on Judge Little's recent decision holding that the Hawaiian Stamp Act is contrary to the Constitution of the United States:

"If we were asked to state on what ground the learned Judge based his conclusion, we should hardly be able to answer, with becoming gravity, but would rather be inclined to say, 'Here in Hilo!'"

After quoting some of Judge Little's grandiloquent language and giving the result of the Judge's conclusions that the Territory "has no power to impose, retard or attempt to control the operations of Congress," and strongly intimating that probably the Stamp Act is all right, the editor concludes by saying:

"If this Stamp Act is unconstitutional, as being in derogation of the Constitution of the United States—assuming that Constitution to be in force in Hawaii—this opinion fails to show it, but it does contain a vivid illustration of the kind of judges that may be imposed by federal appointment upon a helpless and long suffering people."

LOCAL BREVITIES.

Sixteen boxes of beneficial insects and seeds from Mexico were received yesterday at the Agricultural office from Prof. Koebel. They are being well cared for by Prof. Perkins.

The plans for the entire line of the Kohala-Hilo railway were approved by Secretary Cooper yesterday. The contract provides that the work must be completed within two years and six months from date.

The two Chinese charged with counterfeiting were discharged yesterday afternoon by Commissioner Gill. The alleged counterfeit coins it will be remembered were reported by the Treasury experts to be good and lawful coin.

The Commissioner of Agriculture received by the Sierra two hundred fresh ginseng roots from the Joplin ginseng farm, Missouri. They have been turned over to Forester Haughts, who will use great care in propagating them in Nuuanu valley.

The Four Track News, organ of the New York Central Railroad, says: "Now that the Stars and Stripes float over Hawaii and Alaska, the American can find any sort of climate or condition he may seek without going away from home."

H. J. Crocker, who is now here on a visit, is said to possess one of the finest and most complete collections of Hawaiian stamps in the world. He values his collection at $25,000, and has nearly every variety issued by the various forms of Hawaiian government.

NO OPIUM IN CHAMBERLAIN'S COUGH REMEDY.—Many cough cures contain opium. The effect of this drug is to diminish secretion of the mucus, and the relief afforded is only temporary. As soon as the effect of the opium passes off, the malady returns in a more severe form. The system is also weakened and rendered more susceptible to cold. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy does not contain opium in any form. It affords relief and leaves the system in a healthy condition. It always cures and cures quickly. All dealers and druggists sell it. CHILD'S MEDICINE—

WHY?

Because Scott's Emulsion relieves such an extraordinary variety of children's diseases all the way from slight colds to the serious hip disease.

Because Scott's Emulsion is as harmless as milk. Well borne even by the delicate stomachs of babies.

Because children respond so quickly to its action. A medicine peculiarly suited to their sensitive nature. It is wonderful how rapidly delicate children improve in every way while taking Scott's Emulsion. Because children like the taste. Most of them like Scott's Emulsion at once. The rest soon learn to like it. Little daily doses bring the results.

We'll send you a little to try, if you like.

Ringling Noises

In the ears (how disagreeable they are!) become chronic and cause much uneasiness and even temporary distraction. They are signs of catarrh; other signs are droppings in the throat, nasal sounds of the voice, impaired taste, smell and hearing.

Catarrh is a constitutional disease, originating in impure blood, and requires a constitutional remedy.

"I suffered from catarrh in the head and loss of appetite and sleep. My blood was thin and I felt bad all over most of the time. I decided to try Hood's Sarsaparilla and now have no symptoms of catarrh. I have a good appetite, and sleep well. I heartily recommend Hood's Sarsaparilla to all my friends." R. Long, California Junction, Iowa.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Cures catarrh of the nose, throat, bowels, etc., removes all its effects, and builds up the whole system.

WOULD SHIFT BURDEN

Defense Apparent In Tanbara Case.

The jury in the case of Tanbara Gisa-buro was sworn before ten o'clock yesterday morning and the greater part of the day was spent by the defense in an attempt to shift the responsibility for the murder of Captain Jacobson to the shoulders of S. Oto, the Japanese cook. This was the line adopted in the cross-examination, the defense seeking to draw out admissions from the cook of a statement said to have been made in the presence of Chester Doyle, in which Tanbara was advised not to implicate Oto.

The day had quite a sensational ending, Judge Estee ordering Oto, the cook, to appear next Thursday and show cause why he should not be punished for contempt. The order was made because of Oto's refusal to answer and evasion of questions put to him both by the Court and the attorneys.

As on the preliminary examination the cook was a bad witness, and rarely answered a question directly. At times it was necessary to repeat a question half a dozen times, and the witness was warned that he should be more careful. Questions were put to him by Judge Estee also, which were productive of no better results, and the Court was finally compelled to give up the examination in disgust. At the conclusion of the cross-examination Judge Estee instructed the interpreter to notify Oto "to appear one week from today to show cause why he should not be punished for contempt of court in swearing to tell the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth, and then refusing to answer questions and evading others, in that way obstructing the course of justice." Oto seemed not much concerned when the words of the Court were interpreted to him.

Attorney Thompson exercised his remaining four peremptory challenges yesterday morning by excusing C. A. Hall, A. W. Meyer, Ed Towse and Richard Davenport. This left the jury which was finally sworn to try the case composed of the following men:

W. H. Wilkinson, T. H. Hughes, C. H. Brown, M. J. Bissell, E. B. Friel, J. J. MacDonald, Jonathan Shaw, W. F. Sablin, J. P. Winne, W. T. Schmidt, W. O. Atwater, L. E. C. Parish.

United States Attorney Breckins made his opening statement to the jury immediately. He first said he would prove the jurisdiction of the court by the fact that the Fred J. Wood was an American vessel and the crime was committed on the high seas. He then referred to the evidence which he said would show that the murder was committed by the defendant with a knife, which was taken from his hand by force.

H. E. Thayer, the first witness, said he was secretary of the E. K. Wood Lumber Co., which had a one-eighth interest in the Fred J. Wood, and he testified that the vessel had an American register. F. J. Church identified photographs of the vessel taken by himself, showing where the captain's body was found. Captain U. S. G. White testified as to an examination of the vessel, and Dr. Holt testified as to the wound found by him upon Captain Jacobson's body. He said such a stab would cause instant death, and the captain could not have lived five seconds after the wound in the groin had been inflicted.

S. Oto was the first important witness. He is the Japanese cook who was accused by the cabin boy at the first hearing of being guilty of the murder. His story differed very little from that told at the first hearing. He was just as slow to answer, however, and often evaded the question entirely. He testified that the cabin boy was drunk and he had had trouble with the captain. He said that he had seen the stabbing and tried to separate the captain and the boy, though he was unable to do so, and he then called for help. On cross-examination the witness said that Gisa-buro was not drunk but only sea sick. He was questioned at length by Mr. Thompson as to his trouble with the captain over the cooking, and "sweet soup," and denied that the captain had accused him of making away with rice. Oto was questioned also as to the disposition of his shirt, the intention being that he had thrown it away because it had blood upon it.

Concluding his cross-examination Mr. Thompson asked regarding a conversation on the launch on the day the Wood came into port, with the murdered captain on board. Oto admitted that he had talked with Tanbara on the steamboat where there were a lot of passengers.

"Did you say to Tanbara at that time 'When we have trial you say you kill today or tomorrow, and when I confess you go free?'" asked the attorney. Objection was made to the question as unintelligible, but the witness replied "I didn't say any foolish thing like that."

"Did you not say to the defendant not to talk at the trial and you would see him through?"

"I never said anything like that," was the response.

The questions put to the defendant bear upon admissions said to have been made by him in the boat in Japanese, which Chester Doyle heard.

The examination closed at four o'clock. Oto's testimony having been concluded. The government still has a number of witnesses. All the sailors and a number of officials will be called today. The prosecution may be completed tonight or tomorrow morning.

At the request of one of the jurors, Marshal Hendry was ordered to bring a barber into the jury rooms at the hotel and shave all the jurors at their own expense if desired.

NOVEL KIND OF FEASTS

Happy-go-Lucky South Sea Islanders at Kalih Detention Camp.

A happy crowd of people constituting the South Sea Islanders colony occupy one portion of the Kalih Detention Camp, and they have recently inaugurated a novel way of getting up what they call a feast. These feasts are held once a week and at times as many as sixty or seventy people, South Sea Islanders and native Hawaiians, attend them. The feast starts in the open air at about three o'clock every Saturday afternoon, and keeps up in varying ways until Monday morning, when the feasters return to their work of fishing and making hats.

Out at the island camp they live in quite a happy-go-lucky manner. They have good buildings to preserve them from the elements but the rooms contain little or no furniture. Numbers of people of both sexes live in the same room, sleep on mats, and in some cases on bare boards. The men of the camp spend their time fishing. Basket traps, three or four feet in length and a couple of feet in diameter, having a small opening for the fish to enter and arranged in such a way that once in a fish cannot get out again, are used by the fishermen. Numbers of these are placed in the shallow sea water near the camp, and allowed to rest there until fish are entrapped. Then the islanders put their catch in smaller baskets and sell them to Chinese fishermen who work the fish ponds out that way. Through the Chinese the fish reach the Honolulu market. The South Sea men get considerable money in this way. They buy but little clothing, purchase but few provisions, live on fish, and spend the greater portion of their earnings on beer and gin. But each man manages to keep a dollar in his possession until the end of the week, when he throws it into the feast pool to be used in buying beer and gin and other things for the gathering.

The women carry out the same system as the men. They spend all of their time, when not sleeping, in making hats. These hats are sent to Honolulu on Saturday mornings, and peddled about from house to house. They bring anywhere from twenty-five to seventy-five cents each. The agent, usually a native, who sells them must have a little profit, and the rest goes to the hat-makers, who spend a portion of it for cheap finery and the remainder of it for "booze." The women also have to have a dollar at the end of the week, or they will not be allowed to participate in the feast. As from fifty to seventy-five dollars are collected for these feasts one can easily imagine the large quantity of "wet goods" that the party gets.

Old and young gather around the feasting resort and there is considerable fun during the earlier part of the proceedings. A reporter chanced to come upon one of these parties at the detention camp. Everyone looked on in surprise when he approached and seemed to be offended at his presence.

"You want buy hat?" queried one old woman.

"No, I want feast," answered the reporter.

A young girl giggled but was promptly suppressed by an old man who sat beside her.

"You got five dollars?" asked a white haired old man, who seemed to be the leader of the party.

"No," said the reporter.

"Well, we say you much better go way."

The reporter did as he was bid, and was followed a few steps by a number of dogs that had been loafing around the feast waiting for bones that the feasters threw away from time to time.

But despite their feasts and drinking these natives give but little trouble. As fast as a feaster becomes too drunk to continue, at the affair others drag him away to a quiet place where he can sleep off the results of his carousal.

On the following day he can be seen drinking huge quantities of water and slowly moving off in a surly manner toward the fishing traps.

IN THE MATTER OF FORESTRY

Mr. Gifford Pinchot, the head of the Forestry Bureau, Department of Agriculture at Washington, who was expected to pass through Honolulu on his way to the Philippines, has gone there by way of Paris as he was in that city October 4th. His father gave a school of forestry to Yale University. Mr. Pinchot is known by many Honoluluans. Senator George Carter was his guest on his recent visit to Washington. In an interview while in Paris Mr. Pinchot said:

"There are fifty millions of acres of forest in the Philippines. These are dense tropical forests of hard wood fit for cabinet purposes. The forests alone at the lowest calculation are worth five hundred million dollars. They help to make the islands even a better acquisition than Alaska. Those who kick about the twenty millions paid to Spain for these islands know not what they say."

The idea is to make use of these forests and yet to preserve them. They must be cut in such a way that they will reproduce themselves. Forestry enters so much into the climatic conditions and prosperity of a country that much attention cannot be given to it. In France a man cannot cut down his own trees without the consent of the Government. Some of the oldest French legislation, dating back to the Roman occupation deals with forestry. "The idea is to look after the material interests of the Philippines, just as our three thousand school teachers are cultivating their intellectual domain. If the forests of a country be destroyed it is ruined. Americans are fully alive to this."

BOARD OF EDUCATION

Changes Are Made in the Teaching Corps.

At a meeting of the Board of Education yesterday morning plans for the new Reformatory were presented and discussed by the members.

A letter was read from Secretary Wilson of the Department of Agriculture at Washington regarding the establishment of an agricultural school in Honolulu in which he says:

"Without doubt institutions for agricultural education should be established in Hawaii as soon as practicable. It is however, a question well worth considering whether an agricultural institution of college grade is at present needed in Hawaii. Experience under similar conditions elsewhere would seem to indicate that it would be better to establish agricultural schools of secondary grade in which along with the studies ordinarily pursued in high schools a considerable amount of instruction in the theory and practice of agriculture may be given. Such schools should have farms well equipped with live stock and farm machinery, and instruction in agriculture should be along practical lines, with special reference to local and agricultural needs. The principals of such schools should be men trained in our agricultural colleges and in thorough sympathy with industrial education."

A letter was received from Mrs. L. C. Lyman, Josephine Deyo and C. C. Kennedy of Hilo petitioning for a kindergarten school at Waialeale. There being no appropriation for the purpose, it was decided to ask the legislature for the necessary funds.

Leave of absence was granted to Mrs. Hae, Mrs. Amalu and J. K. Burkett. The following report on changes in the teaching corps was approved:

Mrs. Ellen Kenway transferred from Pohnukaina to Waikiki without change of salary.

Mrs. W. M. Minton appointed to Pohnukaina in place of Mrs. Kenway, transferred.

Miss Mary Pickard appointed teacher of the Kamooa school.

Miss Mary Enos appointed a pupil teacher at Hakalau.

Miss Anna M. Cook transferred from Hilo to Honomakua without change of salary.

Mrs. Laniana McKenzie appointed to Makapala, vice Miss Amy Van Deerlin, resigned.

W. J. E. Payne appointed to Kukuihaele, vice Miss Bernice Peabe, transferred to Kamalo, vice Miss Theresa McCormick.

Miss Bernice Peabe transferred from Kukuihaele to Kamalo, without change of salary.

Miss B. K. Mahlum transferred from Olua to Waimea, Kauai, without change of salary.

Miss Miss Quint, who failed to return.

On the recommendation of Normal Inspector King Chas. Kellikahuna of the Pelekunu school is dropped from the service and Miss Emma Kane takes his place.

Miss Lizzie Auhai, a new teacher on the force, appointed to the Kaula school, Puna.

Miss Mabel Hansen, a new teacher on the force, appointed principal of the 12 miles school, Puna.

Mrs. Mattie Wakefield, a new teacher on the force, appointed assistant in the 12 miles school.

Miss L. M. Carpenter, a new teacher on the force, appointed an assistant in the Olua school in place of Miss Mahlum, transferred.

CORPSE STOOD UP IN THE WATER

Yesterday was a dull day on the water-front. It was natural that old salts should gather idly wherever there were chairs, and three such gathered at one place and talked of the days when clipper ships were running to Hawaii. The talk turned to deaths at sea, as many people who were bound here for their health in the early days died on the passage.

"That reminds me," said one, "of the most terrible experience I have ever experienced during nearly a half a century of life on the sea. I was master of a ship making a voyage around Cape Horn many years ago. I forget the exact date. We got something of a gale after rounding the Horn and were chasing it out with the wind coming straight over our stern. Things were pretty lively and during a few seas we took over a deck house got loose from its lashings and jammed the carpenter up against a mast. It was some time before we could get the poor fellow out and then we found that the life had been practically crushed out of him. We took him to the cabin and made him as comfortable as possible but he died. He was so badly crushed that he could not keep him more than the time required to fix a canvas suit for him. We could not leave the ship, because of the gale, and so had to drop the body over the stern. Well there must have been a great amount of air in his suit. In body and the canvas must have helped to retain it. We did not get a heavy enough weight on the body and when we dropped it into the water it would not sink, and simply stood half way out of the water bobbing about."

It was awful, and the worst of it was that the upright figure in the water could be seen from the ship for a long time after we sailed away from it. After that I always made sure that there were enough pieces of iron in my vessel to properly weight a body in case we were so unfortunate as to have another death."

TO HAVE TORCH AND ORATOR

meetings as far as Waikane. They report that there is growing enthusiasm among the Hawaiian Republicans, and an opening of the eyes of those who are Home Rulers. There will be a largely increased vote in every precinct clear down to Laie, and the chances are that the Republicans, instead of being in a great minority, as they were two years ago, will split the vote evenly, or even have slight majorities everywhere.

HE VOTED FOR LINCOLN.

Mr. Louis Belcke, who lives in Nuanu valley, voted for Lincoln in 1860. At the time he lived in Phoenixtown, Oregon, ten miles from Jacksonville. Mr. Belcke puts in his claim as one of the oldest voters in Hawaii.

WAIKIKI VOTERS GATHER.

More than 100 voters gathered at Kananakul's at Waikiki to listen to Republican orators, and the interest shown in the meeting was so strongly in contrast to the meeting of Monday evening that the workers were greatly encouraged by the enthusiasm displayed.

Before the meeting was called to order the quintette club of the Young Men's Republican Club entertained the audience with songs, among them being one written by a blind leper girl, which praises the Prince and the Republican party, as opposed to Wilcox. The best of feeling prevailed throughout, and every point made by the speakers was applauded by the people who listened to every word uttered.

Robert N. Boyd was the chairman of the meeting and made the introductory speeches, opening by telling the people of the necessity for action on their part to redeem the Territory from the state into which it has fallen. He said that if the Queen could be induced to speak on political action at this time, she would tell the people to stand for the party which proposes to protect the interests of all. He presented W. W. Harris as the first speaker of the evening. Mr. Harris began by telling of the treatment which is accorded to lepers in the United States, and told how Senator Burton spoke of treating the local unfortunates should they come under control of the Federal government.

Referring to the song written by the blind girl, he asked if the voters would fail to listen to her voice and send Wilcox back to Washington, and the crowd answered "No." He closed with an appeal to the people to vote for Kalanianohe and the entire ticket of the Republican party.

S. F. Chillingworth spoke of the many failures of the Home Rulers which have resulted in the undoing of the business interests of the Territory. He said the Republican party was entitled to a trial by the people on the showing of their platform to every plank of which the candidates stood pledged. He spoke with force upon the city and county and the leper questions and aroused much enthusiasm when he said the best performance of duty to country would be made when the people defeated Wilcox.

In presenting L. L. McCandless, Boyd said that he was a man who had fought for the Hawaiian people. When Wilcox was elected and needed money to get to Washington, the speaker borrowed for him $400 from the candidate for the senate. McCandless said that the Home Rulers were constantly misleading the people when they told of the great strength of the Home Rule party. He called attention to the fact that it had been alleged that the northern end of the island was composed of 35 per cent Home Rulers. He said that was incorrect. The Home Rulers he said had continually misrepresented the state of affairs to the people, and lied constantly concerning their work. The extent of this misrepresentation he said was known to the people themselves and they will be defrauded the same way if they vote for the Home Rule candidates again. He pleaded with the people to come out of the darkness into the daylight.

Frank Andrade asked the people "Do you want good government?" and when they answered "Yes" then he said, "Vote the Republican ticket." He went on to tell what the Home Rulers had not done and wound up with an appeal for votes for the Prince and the entire Republican ticket.

B. H. Kelekolio one of the Young Men's Republican Club orators, was at his best in ridiculing the Home Rulers. He said he was glad he was a citizen of a country which had its flag in every sea and every climate, for under it there was protection for everyone. He enlarged upon how great was the United States and what a small part of it all was Wilcox. He said the failures of Wilcox were due to the fact that God was not on his side, for the very man who began the cry of "Kill the snake" two years ago was no more but the men whom he attacked still lived.

Jonah Kumalea read the letter from Kalaupapa which Judge Kaulukou received and then made a strong appeal for the people to vote for the Prince and against the return of Wilcox. The meeting adjourned with three cheers for the Queen for the Prince and for the Republican party.

HOME RULE MEETINGS

There were large meetings of Home Rulers at the Moiliili church and in Manoa valley last evening. The Home Rule candidates for various offices spoke.

The subscriptions obtained at the two meetings of the Christian Missionary Alliance in New York amounted to $20,000.

LEPROSY IN INDIA

Locate the Germ But Find No Remedy.

ROCHESTER (N. Y.), October 15.—Dr. M. B. Carleton of Sabattin, near Amballa City, India, one of the most widely known experts in the treatment of leprosy in the Indian Empire, is the guest of Frank W. Foote, accompanied by Mrs. Carleton and two children.

Dr. Carleton has been in India two years before the Sepoy mutiny, his parents having gone to that country as missionaries from Barrie, Vt., in 1854. When a young man, he was sent to the United States, where he studied medicine. He returned to India in 1881, and took up work among the lepers of India. He now has an asylum containing 100 lepers at Sabattin. In answer to questions, Dr. Carleton said:

"The last census shows that there are about 400,000 lepers in India. In the district where I live there are about 40 to each 1000 inhabitants. In some of the other districts, the proportion is much smaller."

"I now have about 100 patients, men and women, and a few children, in my compound. We have three Europeans now, one having died since I have been in America. He was a colleague of Mr. Foote, while he was in India ten years ago. He was at the asylum about four years."

"What is the average life of lepers after they contract the disease?"

AVERAGE LIFE OF THE LEPER.

"It differs with the kind of leprosy, of which there are two varieties. In one variety the disease attacks the arms and legs. The hands and arms, and also the feet and portions of the legs, have absolutely no feeling. Sufferers from this kind often live from 30 to 40 years. The other variety attacks the lungs. In these cases the lease of life is not usually over 10 years."

"What is the cause of leprosy?"

"We do not know, we have been seeking the cause. We have found the germ, but as yet have not been able to cultivate it. Neither have we found a germicide. The natives all go bare-foot, and it is sometimes thought that the disease is contracted in the same manner as the bubonic plague, through the soles of the feet. Of this I have great doubt, as I have had charge of lepers for 20 years, have handled them, and am operating all the time when I am at home, removing pieces of bone and performing other necessary operations. To be sure, of late years since I have a family and I have had some precautions, such as washing my hands with disinfectants after operations, but I never have had the slightest symptoms. For this and other reasons I do not think that the germ enters the system through the skin. It seems to attack only people who are inclined to tuberculosis, but we have been unable, after long years of investigation, to ascertain the cause."

"Is your family with you at this leper settlement?" was asked.

"Certainly. Three of my children were born in the compound, not 300 feet from the leper house, and none of my family has ever had the slightest symptom of the disease, nor do I expect that either my wife or myself will ever have."

"Then this idea of a leper nurse bidding goodby to the world is erroneous."

LEPER NURSE NEEDN'T BID GOODBY TO THE WORLD

"That is simply nonsense. Why, at Marblehead the other day a man told me that he had been requested to ask whether it was quite safe for people to shake hands with me, in view of the fact that I have constant charge of an asylum of lepers. A healthy person not inclined to tuberculosis, will not contract the disease, even if in contact with it, as I am when at home. In fact, I am firmly convinced that if a healthy person should actually be inoculated with the germ of leprosy—which germ, as I say, we have found and have under observation—that person would not acquire the disease. During my long series of experiments, in the effort to find a germicide, I have frequently inoculated guinea pigs, rabbits and other animals. Not only do these not acquire the disease or any of its symptoms but when an examination of the blood is made a few days later it is found that the white corpuscles of the blood have destroyed the germs. I am handling the germs constantly in my experiments."

"I am 46 years old, and I consider that I have 30 years of life left, according to the mortality tables of the actuaries. To be sure we have the cholera and the bubonic plague there and we have the cobra and the kerite in and around our compound but speaking with reference to danger from leprosy, I think my chances are for 30 years more of life health and work."

Dr. Carleton is in the prime of life, and is the picture of health and robust manhood. He has the characteristic dark color of all white people who have lived long in India.

COAL STRIKE ABOUT OVER

Important Words of President Mitchell.

NEW YORK, October 16.—A dispatch to the World from Wilkesbarre, Pa., says:

President Mitchell of the United Mine Workers' Union, made the following announcement early today:

"I have received a telegram from President Roosevelt advising me of the appointment of his arbitration commission. The convention of miners can be held on Saturday at the latest and can decide to resume work on Monday."

One of the district presidents said: "The strike is as good as called off already. The convention will accept Mr. Mitchell's recommendations and will call off the strike."

President Mitchell was in conference after 3 o'clock with National Secretary Wilson and District Presidents Nichols and Fahey regarding his visit to the President.

After announcing the receipt of President Roosevelt's message giving the names of the arbitration commissioners, Mr. Mitchell was asked "Is it time now to offer congratulations?"

"If you think we deserve it," he said. "And now I am going to bed."

THE FUEL SITUATION.

NEW YORK, October 16.—The fuel situation continues exceedingly troublesome in all parts of the country, not alone in its direct effect upon manufacturing operations, but also in its adverse moral effect upon business generally, says the Iron Age. In the Central West deliveries of coke are very unsatisfactory. From the Lehigh Valley comes the report that furnaces are now getting a little anthracite, but the opinion prevails that in the most favorable case the manufacturing industries will not be taken care of until the domestic requirements are fairly well provided for. Fancy prices are being paid for coke for prompt delivery, and $4 and upward have been paid for blast furnace coke well into next year, some furnaces covering on sales for distant delivery of pig.

But what, after all, most interests those who are consumers of coke is prices for next year. As yet this matter has not been settled, although the feeling is that an advance of $1 to $2.25 at over Connellsville, seems certain. If, in fact, it is not considerably higher, it is understood that a sale of Bessemer pig iron for the second and third quarters of 1903, involving several hundred thousand tons, is kept pending until the question of coke prices is settled.

COAL PRICES DECLINING.

NEW YORK, October 16.—Coal dealers, who have been speculating in cargoes of soft coal for future delivery, are reported as most panic stricken over the outlook for speedy resumption in the anthracite fields and a number of large lots have been dumped upon the market. Prices for bituminous have declined from around $10 to $5.50 a ton. Domestic sizes of anthracite still bring $18 to $20.

MEXICO PAYS THE PIOUS FUND

WASHINGTON, October 16.—The State Department has given out the following statement in response to a telegram received from Mr. J. H. Ralston, United States agent at The Hague in reference to the Pious Fund:

"The opinion of the permanent Court of Arbitration declares that all parts of the judgment of the umpire of the mixed claims commission in 1875 concerning the debated points, explain and serve to render precise the sense and bearing of the decision and determine the points in dispute; that this rule applies not only to ordinary tribunals but to arbitral sentences and to international arbitrations; that the convention of 1853 between the United States and Mexico accorded to the mixed claims commission and the umpire the right to determine their own jurisdiction; that there is identity of parties and subject matter in the present controversy; and the arbitral sentence rendered in 1875; that Mexico conscientiously executed the former sentence; that it is in arrears for thirty-three annual installments since accorded; that the law of prescription cannot be applied to the present conflict; that the money in which payment of the annuity should be made in the absence of express stipulation must be that having currency in Mexico; that upon this point the former sentence, relating to execution and not to the bases to the right in litigation, had not the force of res judicata except for a term to which it had reference."

The permanent court decided that the present claim was determined by the principle of res judicata; that conformably to the former sentence there should be paid by Mexico the sum demanded by the United States, $1420,682.67 in Mexican currency within the ensuing eight months; and further that Mexico should pay to the United States on February 2, 1902, and each following year the sum of $3,000,000 in Mexican currency. The contentions of the United States were sustained in every particular except that permission is virtually given to Mexico to pay in silver."

Attorney-General Knox, at Pittsburg, declared that Congress may yet improve the anti-trust law by amendments, and said the administration had done much to restrain unlawful trade combinations.

INCOME TAX CASE SET FOR HEARING ON APPEAL

Constitutionality of Law is Again Attacked in Higher Court—Hearing Will Be Had on November 10th.

(From Wednesday's Daily.)

On application of both Attorney General Dole and Colonel Thomas Fitch the United States Court of Appeals at San Francisco has forwarded the income tax case upon its calendar, and agreed to hear it upon November 10th, so that decision may be reached before any proceedings shall be instituted against delinquents. Alex. Robertson sailed on the Sonoma yesterday and will appear for the Territory at the argument. Assistant United States District Attorney Dunne, who is now in San Francisco, has been employed by parties interested there, and will appear for the tax payers. Colonel Fitch will not go to San Francisco, being kept here by important business, but he forwards an elaborate brief of seventy-one printed pages.

"This proceeding," says the brief for the appellants, "was instituted to enjoin the collection of the Hawaiian income tax; a demurrer was interposed upon the ground that complainants had an adequate remedy at law, and that the bill disclosed a want of equity. The lower court sustained the demurrer upon the former grounds; and, without affording complainants any opportunity to amend, summarily dismissed the bill outright, instead of 'without prejudice.' Hence this appeal."

"The bill was filed by some sixty or more of the leading merchants of Honolulu."

The bill alleges the invalidity of the income tax law, and avers that notwithstanding such invalidity, J. W. Pratt, collector, is threatening to collect the same, and if the complainants should pay they could not, if the law were afterwards declared unconstitutional, recover their money back, because "under the system of finances adopted and in use by the said defendant as 'treasurer' the moneys received from complainants would have been paid out to persons having demands on the treasury of the Hawaiian Territory; that the former and present expenditures of the Territory of Hawaii are largely in excess of its income; that there is now a large and constantly increasing deficit in said treasury, and the damage to complainants would be great and irreparable, amounting probably to a total loss to complainants of any sums so paid; and that all of the complainants herein have, as hereinbefore set forth, a common and general interest in the subject matter of this action and will be similarly affected by the results thereof, and therefore, and in order to avoid a multiplicity of suits, complainants join herein."

To this bill the Territory demurred on the ground that no injunction ought to issue, because the complainants "have a full, complete and adequate remedy at law."

Judge Estes sustained the demurrer of the Territory, and concerning this demurrer, the counsel for the tax payers say: "It is perfectly evident from the opinion of the court below that no attempt was made to pass upon the question of constitutional validity of this income tax law. It is also perfectly evident from that opinion that the case in the court below went off solely upon the point that the complainants have a complete and adequate remedy at law."

"An examination of the position taken by the lower court in sustaining this demurrer will reveal what our duty compels us to describe, but with great respect for the court below, as confusion of thought."

In the brief of counsel for tax payers many authorities are cited to sustain the position that "where the legal remedy is inadequate or incomplete, equity will grant relief against the collection of an invalid tax." And it is insisted that "to refuse relief in equity upon the ground that there is remedy at law, it must appear that the remedy at law is 'as practical and efficient to the ends of justice and its prompt administration as the remedy in equity.'"

It is claimed that Judge Estes was wrong in holding that no one of the complainants would be subjected to more than one suit upon a refusal to pay taxes, and therefore an injunction could not be obtained in order to prevent a multiplicity of suits, and the appellants quote Professor Pomeroy as saying:

"The weight of authority is simply overwhelming that the jurisdiction may and should be exercised either on behalf of a numerous body of separate claimants against a single party, or on behalf of a single party against such a numerous body, although there is no 'common title' nor 'community of right' or of interest."

Colonel Fitch concludes his argument by saying:

"Any decision of this court which shall fail to include an expression of its opinion as to the constitutionality of the Hawaiian income tax law will be measurably profitless, both to the appellants and to the respondent."

"The appellants will be satisfied to pay the tax without further resistance if, in the opinion of the judges of this court, the law inflicting it is constitutional, but until there shall be in some way an adjudication of that question by a federal court, they will resist payment."

"The appellants submit that the income tax law is void for want of uniformity; that it was enacted in brazen defiance of the Organic Act of Hawaii Territory, and of Section 8, Article I, and of the 4th, 5th, 6th, and 14th amendments to the constitution of the United States, and that the void sections of it make invalid the entire law, for that it constitutes an entire scheme of taxation."

"The income tax law under consideration is marked by discriminating features which affect the whole law. It discriminates between those who receive an income of one thousand dollars and those who do not. It thus violates, by its arbitrary discrimination, the whole legislation. Hamilton says in one of his papers (The Continental): 'The genius of liberty repudiates everything arbitrary or discretionary in taxation. It enacts that every man, by a definite and general rule, should know what proportion of his property the state demands.' What ever liberty one may boast of in theory, it cannot exist in fact while (arbitrary) assessments continue. The legislation, in the discrimination it makes, is class legislation. Whenever a distinction is made in the burdens a law imposes, or in the benefits it confers on any citizens by reason of their birth or wealth or religion, it is class legislation, and leads inevitably to oppression and abuses, and to general unrest and disturbance in society. It was hoped and believed that the great amendments to the constitution which followed the late Civil War had rendered such legislation impossible for all future time."

"But the objectionable legislation reappears in the act under consideration. It is the same in essential character as that of the English income statute of 1691, which taxed Protestants at a certain rate, Catholics, as a class, at double the rate of Protestants, and Jews at another and separate rate."

"Section 2 of the Hawaiian income tax makes a discrimination in favor, not merely of public educational institutions conducted for the public good, but in favor of private schools, colleges, commercial colleges, fraternal benefit societies, and fire, life and marine insurance companies; all of which are conducted for private profit."

"Concerning similar exemptions in the income tax law of Congress, Mr. Justice Field says: '157 U. S. Rep. 595. 'If there were any doubt as to the intention of the states to make a grant of the right to impose indirect taxes, subject to the condition that such taxes shall be in all respects uniform and impartial, that doubt should be resolved in the interest of justice in favor of the tax payer.'"

"As many as were the discriminating clauses in the income tax law of Congress, so ably criticised by Justice Field, there were other clauses; clauses which the Hawaiian legislature, in blind disregard of the fact that the income tax law of Congress had been declared void, proceeded to copy in the Hawaiian law."

"Section 3 of the Hawaiian law discriminates in favor of the man who, with his family, consumes the product of his field, orchard, dairy, and poultry yard and against the man who sells his potatoes, fruit, butter, eggs, and chickens."

"Section 4 makes discrimination between married men and bachelors; between wards living together and wards living separately; between families where the husband is the only breadwinner and families where both husband and wife earn an income."

"Article 5 of the Constitution of the United States provides that no man shall be deprived of property without due process of law, and Article 14 provides that no state shall deny to any person within its jurisdiction the equal protection of the laws (and it will hardly be claimed that a territory has greater constitutional rights than a state)."

"Are not the discriminations herebefore created, each and all, in violation of the articles of the Constitution referred to? And did not Congress, in the Organic Act, limit the power of the Hawaiian legislature to the enactment of laws not in conflict with the Constitution and laws of the United States?"

"When the Hawaiian legislature approached the task of providing for the enforcement of its income tax law it created measures more drastic than any ever proposed by Congress. The 4th, 5th and 6th amendments to the United States Constitution received some small consideration at the hands of the Congress but the Hawaiian legislature leaped defiantly, with both feet upon all Constitutional restrictions."

"Under the act of Congress, when a person refused to make a return to the collector, or was suspected by the collector of making a false return, it was the duty of that officer to make a return 'according to the best information he can obtain by the examination of such person or other evidence.' Under the Hawaiian law, under similar circumstances, the assessor is given power to summon the person, refusing to return, or suspected by the assessor of having made a false return, and bring his books and papers with him and compel him to give testimony under oath. Under the act of Congress in case of neglect or refusal to make a return, 50 per cent. could be added to the tax as a penalty; and for a fraudulent return, 100 per cent."

"Under the act of Congress, the punishment for fraudulent return was confined to the money penalty. Under the Hawaiian law it is made a perjury."

"The essential difference between the laws is that under the act of Congress the collector cannot force the tax payer to appear as a witness or produce his books. Yet under Section 6 of the Hawaiian income tax law the assessor first demands of the supposed tax payer a statement under oath of his income. If, in the opinion of the assessor, the return of the tax payer is false or fraudulent, then without an oath or affirmation, without a warrant, without describing the books or papers required, the assessor summons his victim to appear before him and bring all his books and papers with him."

"There, without a jury, without a court, without a trial, without being confronted with the witnesses against him, without being informed of the precise nature of the charge against him, he is compelled to become a witness against himself, and if, as a result of the inquisitorial and unconstitutional examination, the assessor is not well pleased with the answers made, he finds his victim guilty of perjury; he determines the 'just valuation' of the disputed income, adds 200 per cent. to such 'just valuation,' adds 10 per cent. further penalty if the tax is not paid, and adds interest at 9 per cent. on the tax, forfeiture and penalty."

"The assessor is made by the law complainant, judge, principal witness, and high sheriff, all in one."

"Section 6 of the Hawaiian income tax law is clearly in violation of the 4th, 5th and 6th amendments to the United States Constitution."

"It was held by the supreme court of Hawaii:

"Robertson vs. Pratt, 13 Hawaiian. In a decision supported by copious citations from dissenting opinions of Justices Harlan and Brown, in the case of Pollock vs. Farmers Loan and Trust Company, that 'parts of a statute may be invalid, without rendering invalid the statute as a whole.'"

"We do not question the rule thus announced, but we beg to add to it the language of the supreme court, in 153 U. S. Reports, that where it is impossible to extract the unconstitutional, invalid and void provisions of the law from the body of it, without invalidating the remainder and destroying the law as understood and intended by the legislature—then the law being void in one particular, is altogether void, and the injunction asked for should be granted."

understand that this statement will be in writing and I will then make my explanation. The examination of the books and accounts of my office has not been completed as yet and I do not expect to receive this statement until the early part of next week. There will probably be a statement drawn from the books with the showing of discrepancies if any, and I shall then be in a position to explain whether they are correct or incorrect."

AS TO THE $3,000.

"The $3,000 which I received from T. H. Davies & Co., is on special deposit with me and I am ready to turn it over for the improvement of Bridge street in Hilo as soon as it is required. Of course a different view of the matter may be taken, but I consider that the money was placed on deposit with me for the improvement of that street. I had outlined my plans to carry the work to completion by the end of this year or the beginning of next year. After the money has been expended the pay rolls and vouchers will be accounted for to T. H. Davies & Co. The reason the work has not been done is that the government must first secure certain rights of way and pay damages for the removal of fences. The road damage fund is nearly exhausted and the $3,000 is to be used in part in securing the needed right of way and to pay for the removal of fences. The work has been delayed because the right of way has not been secured and because other streets in Hilo must first be graded. The grade was just received from our engineer at Hilo a few weeks before Marston Campbell's accident."

"The $3,000 was not turned over to the Treasurer as a government realization or a special deposit for the simple reason that if it had been it could not have been taken out for this work. It would have required a special act on the part of the legislature to remove the money once it had been paid into the Treasury. If it had been paid over there it would have been nothing to prevent its use by the government in the same manner as the Chinese fund was used in the payment of warrants. I had given Davies & Co. my personal receipt as Superintendent of Public Works for the $3,000, and I personally would have been held responsible for that amount. Had the money been in the treasury it could not have been drawn upon as it would have been required in the payment of work in Hilo. The money now is on special deposit and I am ready to account for it at any time."

AS TO B. H. WRIGHT.

"I am entirely at sea in regard to B. H. Wright—where he got the money said to have been taken by him, and what became of it. The news that he was in trouble was a surprise to me, but I inferred that the matter had been settled. Treasurer Wright wrote me but one letter in which he mentioned the B. H. Wright trouble, and he then said assurances had been given that the amount would be made up. I wrote one letter to B. H. Wright while away, but received no answer, and supposed it was because he was in jail."

"It was not the custom in the department to keep such large sums in the safe as Wright is alleged to have taken. Our receipts come from sewer rents, garbage charges, sale of town lots and government realizations. It was the practice to make a deposit with the Treasurer once a week and when large amounts were received, deposits were made oftener. When we were receiving small amounts it was the practice to wait until it had reached the sum of several thousand dollars before being deposited. B. H. Wright was in charge of the safe, and I never went

No Strength

Are you easily tired? Is your work a burden? Do you often feel weak and faint? Is your appetite poor? Are you easily discouraged? Then your nerves are weak and your blood impure. Sickness is not far away.

Mr. Frederick Devigne, of Claremont, Cape Colony, South Africa, sends his photograph and the letter: "My blood often becomes impure, causing eruptions on the skin, and my general system gets all run down, causing indigestion and great debility. But take Ayer's Sarsaparilla, which quickly brings me out of my troubles. For all those who are debilitated and weakened by the long, hot summers of our country, there is no remedy equal to this grand family medicine!"

AYER'S Sarsaparilla

There are many imitation "Sarsaparillas." Be sure you get Ayer's.

Always keep your bowels in good condition with Ayer's Pills. They are purely vegetable, act on the liver, induce constipation, biliousness, sick headache, and all liver troubles.

For Almost Forty Years

For almost two score of years we have, built nothing but Stoves—Good Stoves.

With the largest stove plant in the world, equipped with all modern appliances that money can buy and brains can devise, employing more skilled hands than any concern in our line, steadily employed and contented mechanics, we ought to build the best stoves and ranges in the world, and do.

The great skill and artistic temperament of our designers, men who stand highest in their particular lines, are evident in every JEWEL STOVE AND RANGE.

A Jewel Stove or range is an ornament to any home.

Further than that, it is intelligently designed to meet all requirements, and does meet them successfully.

Quality—the very highest as to materials, workmanship and design—is guaranteed by the Crown trade mark, which is cast on every stove and range we make.

It took us almost forty years to build up the reputation which stands back of our trade mark, a reputation which grows wider each recurring season. We propose to maintain it at any cost.

It stands to reason that we, with our immense plant, facilities, and unlimited resources, can build stoves in large numbers cheaper than smaller concerns can in smaller quantities, and with more limited facilities. We buy raw materials from first hands, at the right time, at lowest prices, thereby enabling us to build highest grade ranges and sell them at lowest prices.

We are always aggressive, ready to meet every requirement, never allow our patterns to become out of date, and operate our own pattern shop, assuring exclusive and attractive designs. All of our ranges are made and sold under the name "JEWEL" and the well known trade mark, which guarantees quality.

There unless with him to open it. "While I, as Superintendent of Public Works, am responsible for the acts of all the clerks in my office, I do not see how I am accountable for the alleged shortage of B. H. Wright. The money collected by him was collected as a public accountant, and he as such was responsible to the Treasurer, and the Auditor General approved his accounts. In the same way the collections made by the water department which, although under my supervision, are accounted for directly to the Treasurer. Wright was not under bonds to me and it has never been the practice to require bonds from the clerks in the Interior department."

"I saw nothing of Treasurer Wright in San Francisco and received no word from him aside from the first letter. Just before the steamer sailed there were rumors around to the effect that he had gone to Mexico."

MORE TROUBLE FOR THE HERMAN

Speeding away southward for Sydney on the steamer Sierra is George W. Sutton, who has authorizations and orders from the syndicate searching for the Cocos Island treasure, said to amount to sixty millions and which is said to be buried on some South Sea island, which will be a veritable bombshell when dropped aboard the treasure steamer Herman, which spent some time at Honolulu recently.

Sutton was a member of the original party which came from San Francisco in the Herman and had so much pillkila while in Honolulu. As the boat was leaving here, Hoffman, a brother of Southard Hoffman of Honolulu, and Sutton had trouble. Sutton and two friends wanted Hoffman to leave the party here. Hoffman refused, and, armed to the teeth, boarded the little vessel with Frank Sharretts. Seeing that some shooting might occur, Sutton and his two friends made arrangements with Captain Brown for him to make a leisurely cruise to Sydney and wait there until Sutton had time to go back to the syndicate and get authority to put Hoffman out of the enterprise.

When the vessel left here, Hoffman and Sharretts thought that Brown would take them direct to the treasure island and that in a few weeks they would be simply swimming in old Spanish gold coins. But Brown decided to fool them, and sent Sutton on his mission, which has proved successful.

When seen yesterday during the stay of the Sierra in port Sutton said that Hoffman would be put off the vessel at Sydney and that the schooner would remain there until January, as the island where the treasure is located is in the paths of hurricanes and cannot be easily reached before that time.

"I don't think that there will be any shooting," said Sutton, "when I meet Hoffman this time, but I've got the shooting irons along, as usual. Dr. Luce and Chetwood, who also left the schooner at Honolulu, will join the vessel again at Sydney, and I think it will be next September before we can complete our enterprise and arrive back at San Francisco."

"I don't think that Brown will maroon Hoffman on any South Sea island, as he threatened when leaving Honolulu, but I think that Hoffman may have found out by this time that old Captain Brown is the boss of the vessel."

Mr. Sutton is accompanied by D. Stoney, a San Francisco man who has invested money in the enterprise of finding the missing gold.

Attacked by a Whale.

NORFOLK ISLAND, September 27.—A most unfortunate and fatal accident, the first of the kind that has ever occurred here, happened to one of No. 3 Company's whaling boats when whaling off the island on the 10th instant, whereby the man in charge, Byron Adams, the boat header, lost his life. It appears that the boat went out from the Casctide in the morning, and got fast shortly after, and while the crew were busily engaged lancing the whale another whale, which nobody appears to have seen distinctly, suddenly appeared alongside of them, and striking with its flukes, stove the boat badly, and fatally injured the header, Byron Adams. The crew at once cut out the line, tied the oars across to keep the boat upright, and otherwise took all the precautions they could for the safety of their lives, nevertheless, the men had a trying time of it for over an hour in the water before the mate's boat got up and rescued them. While in the water the injured man, who had some life left in him, was supported by two of the men, but expired shortly after being picked up. The distress signal, two wafts, set by the boat had been observed from the shore, and the news spread very quickly, so that when the boat approached the Casctide landing with the sad burthen there were a number of people present, and the scene, the weeping women and the men with their anxious looks, was very saddening indeed, and one not likely to be forgotten.

Made a Long Passage.

ADELAIDE, September 23.—The Scottish Hills arrived at Port Pirie on Saturday. When three days out from Port Sound the deck cargo of about one hundred and thirty thousand feet of Oregon had to be jettisoned. From that day there were fair winds until in the latitude of Sydney. From Sydney to Cape Howe head winds with calms for 25 days were experienced, thence heavy gales until arrival at the anchorage. There are still 1,700,000 superficial feet of Oregon aboard. The long passage (114 days) is partly attributed to the condition of the ship's bottom it being 13 months since she was in dock.

Missup on the Kores.

A letter received from a woman passenger to Japan on the Kores states that she broke out in the coal bunkers on the way over and that some of the cabins became untenable. The fire was not got under control until the big steamer reached Yokohama.

DATE OF ARRIVAL IS UNCERTAIN

The steamer Sierra arrived from San Francisco early yesterday morning, having on board almost a record number of passengers for Honolulu and the Colonies. Among the passengers for Honolulu were a number of bankers and financial men who are interested in the welfare of Hawaii.

In addition to J. F. Hackfeld, who returned after a six month's absence in Europe, John Lloyd and G. T. Turney came from Europe. The former is president of the German Savings and Loan Society, and the latter is the secretary of the same concern. They are here to inspect investments which the society has made in Hawaii. Another banker, A. Kalnes, is the assistant manager of the San Francisco branch of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, and his mission here is to inspect Hawaiian industries, and look up the possibilities for profitable investment here. H. J. Crocker, a San Francisco merchant and capitalist, and Mrs. Crocker came down to spend a few weeks in the islands. Mr. Crocker is here mostly for pleasure, but may make a few investigations regarding the investment outlook here.

J. H. Boyd, superintendent of public works, and Mrs. Boyd returned by the steamer, and were greeted by a large number of friends when landing at the wharf. Dr. W. J. Galbraith returned after a visit to Omaha and other cities. Superintendent Fuller, of the Kahului Railway, and Mrs. Fuller returned from a visit to the Coast. J. S. McCandless returned from a lengthy tour of the states, which included Porto Rico. G. A. Hons and wife, of Wailuku, returned, with Mr. Hons much improved in health. Among other well known people returning was Colonel J. H. Soper, Carl Du Roi, F. S. Dodge, Frank C. Hustace, wife and son, Mrs. H. A. Otis, S. E. P. Taylor and Alexander Young.

The Sierra has a big cargo, amounting to 3,000 tons, which includes heavy shipments of dried fruit for Sydney and Auckland.

The large number of through passengers had an excellent opportunity to see Honolulu, as the steamer arrived early and did not leave for the Colonies until after 10 o'clock last night.
